Statement:

My name is Kerry McAleer-Keeler and I am currently the Director of the MA, Art and the Book Program and Assistant Professor at the Corcoran College of Art and Design, Washington, DC. I received my MFA from The George Washington University; BA, Mount Holyoke College. I am Chair of the Communications Committee for the College Book Arts Association. My work is in such collections as the National Museum of Women In the Arts, The George Washington University, Stafford Hospital Center, Stafford, VA, St. Mary's College, MD, Corcoran College of Art and Design Library, The Corcoran Gallery of Art and the Southern Graphics Council Archives. I have been selected for individual, group, and juried exhibitions throughout the US. My personal studio is part of the LibertyTown Arts Workshop in Fredericksburg, VA. My work appears in The Book As Art: artists books from the National Museum of Women in the Arts publication. I have taught printmaking and book arts at the Corcoran since 1999 and also for the George Washington University and The University of Mary Washington.
